MEMORANDUM FOR: The Director of Intelligence and Research
Department of State

SUBJECT: Comments of a Senior Soviet General Officer
on Soviet Plans Regarding Berlin

1. Enclosed are comments on Soviet planning with regard to Berlin made by a senior Soviet general officer concerned with military preparations for Berlin during the course of a confidential discussion with our source, a well-placed Soviet official in whom we place considerable confidence.

2. In view of the possible significance of this information and the sensitivity of our source, it is requested that this report be handled on a strict need-to-know basis within your office.

FOR THE DEPUTY DIRECTOR, Plans:

RICHARD HELMS

3. "Immediately after the signature of the treaty, a state of combat alert will be declared, the troops of the DDR will cut off the highway (Helmstedt) and other dangerous roads with their tanks, and air patrolling will be increased. A state of combat alert will also be declared for the Soviet troops in the DDR, and in Czechoslovakia as well. We are ready to support the DDR with our multitude of tanks, and if necessary with other weapons. We would want any clash to be brief and limited in scope if the West moves up tanks and other weapons to seize and consolidate communications with Berlin.

4. After the signing of the treaty, the DDR will introduce a new scheme for movement and the use by the West of the railways leading to Berlin and other means of communication with Berlin. We do not intend to forbid the West access to Berlin, but there will be certain restrictions: the West will have to negotiate with the DDR, and that is very important. While recognising the risk, we believe that there will not be a major war, although there may be a local clash only on the territory of Germany, and limited to a small area."

Source Comment: After relating the above remarks of the senior general officer, source added the following as his personal comment:

"The treaty will be signed. The firmness of Khrushchev must be met with firmness. Khrushchev might also retreat on the period of signing of the treaty, if he feels that the West is not confused and if the West prepares significant strength for the defense and reinforcement of communications with Berlin. He is not prepared for a major war, and is only playing on the nerves. It would be advantageous to the West to announce widely a major redeployment of NATO troops, the bringing of the troops to combat readiness, the great strength and power of West Germany, the deployment in Europe of several thousand tanks and airplanes, and to simulate the movement of troops, etc. It is necessary that all this be exaggerated, but it is also necessary to increase Western strength in this theater for a quick, sharp blow at the Soviets."
